TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—The territory of Oklahoma was organized in 1890 from the western part of Indian Territory; in 1893 that part of Indian Territory known as the Cherokee Strip was added; and in November, 1907, Oklahoma, the forty-sixth state, was formed from Oklahoma Territory and Indian Territory and admitted to the Union, with boundaries as at present. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, its population is 2,028,283, which represents an increase of 371,128, or 22.4 per cent, since 1910. During the same period the population of the United States increased by 14.9 per cent.

The following summary shows the population of Oklahoma from 1890 to 1920, inclusive, and the number and per cent of increase for each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole, together with the number enumerated at the special census of 1907:

Counties.—Oklahoma has 77 counties, one of which has been organized from part of another since 1910. Annexations from one county to another, involving changes in area of nine counties, have also been made since 1910. Of the 66 counties whose boundaries have remained unchanged, 42 show increases and 24 decreases as compared with 1910. (See Table 1.) Because of the organization of the new county, Cotton, from a part of Comanche County, it has been necessary, in preparing the maps on page 3, showing rates of increase or decrease in total and rural population between 1910 and 1920, to combine these two counties.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 69,414 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 is 29.2 (see Table 1), as against 23.9 in 1910 and 11.4 in 1900.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which the counties are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the Oklahoma counties are 1,426 in number, comprising 955 townships, 111 cities, and 360 towns. The secondary divisions, of which there are only four, are cities, each of which is coextensive with the township in which located. There is also within the state one military reservation. This reservation, although independent of the county organization, is treated for census purposes as a part of Comanche County, in which it is located. (See Table 2.)

Cities.—Oklahoma has 115 cities, of which Oklahoma City, with a population of 91,295, is the largest, and Tulsa, with 72,075, is second in size. (See Tables 3 and 4.)

POPULATION—OKLAHOMA.

The following summary shows, for each city having 10,000 or more inhabitants in 1920, the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the number and per cent of increase during the preceding decade:

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last four censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of Oklahoma living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 7.4 per cent in 1900 to 19.3 per cent in 1910 and to 26.6 per cent in 1920.
